Sony geared for massive Jackson marketing plans

Keep your eyes peeled for a media blitz surrounding Michael Jackson's newest release HIStory: Past, Present and Future - Book I. Sony Music will be embarking on the most sophisticated and cohesive marketing plan that they have ever attempted. The strategy involves exploiting all media, including television, print and radio.

"We are going to have an extremely aggressive marketing campaign behind this project involving advertising in daily newspapers, television advertising, and outdoor billboard advertising," said Rob Mitchell, director of press and publicity for Sony Music Canada.

The release will be a two CD set, the first a retrospective of Jackson's career as a solo artist, from his first record Off the Wall, through to Dangerous, with all 15 songs on it either number one hit singles or top 10 hits.

The second record contains 15 new songs, again playing on the theme of history and what Mitchell calls "a precedent setting record. There never has been an artist before who's offered a two CD collection that on one disc you get a career retrospective and on the second disc you get an entirely new record." The package also contains a 52-page colour booklet.

"The new material is probably the most personal that Michael Jackson has ever been," said Mitchell. "The lyrical content confronts directly much of the controversy that surrounded him in the last two years related to the allegations of child abuse."

But Mitchell is quick to point out that the aggressiveness of Sony in this release has nothing to do with the allegations that have plagued the world's most successful pop star.

"Anything that Jackson does now is news. And when word gets out in the media about the content of this record and the fact that many of the songs concern the problems that he went through with the Los Angeles Police Department, with the media attacking him, and the sordid nature that he was represented in the news media, people are going to be interested in what he has to say."

Major moves in executive structure of PolyGram Group

Several changes at the executive level of PolyGram Group Canada, have been announced by PGC chairman Gerry Lacoursiere.

Joe Summers, former president of A&M/

"When the news of the content of this record gets out, it's just going to accelerate the sales potential. But no, we are not playing upon it. That's not our intention at all."

There has been tremendous interest in the long-awaited Jackson package so far. MuchMusic devoted an entire program with a panel discussion following the airing of a four minute video teaser, and retail orders are expected to be massive.

"I am in England and he is the front page of all the newspapers here," says Mitchell. "Every single radio station across Europe is jumping on it. Last week, when we released the single to radio and the video in Canada, the Leafs were in the playoffs, the Bernardo trial had just started, it was incredibly competitive. Yet we made page two in the second largest daily in North America with a story on Michael Jackson."

"I think it speaks volumes about what kind of interest there is in Michael. If there's that kind of interest at that level, I think it's a safe bet there'll be considerable interest at the consumer level as well."

Island/Motown Records, will become the vice-chairman of the group. Although it is not official, it's expected that John Reid, marketing director of London Records, which is part of PolyGram UK, will replace Summers.

Lacoursiere also announced that Bill Ott moves up to executive vice-president/general manager of PolyGram Group Sales (PGS). This is a new division, which will be responsible for the sale of all product within PolyGram's family of labels, which are Mercury/Polydor, A&M/Island/Motown, Deutsche Grammophon/London/Philips/Verve and PolyTel.

Working with Ott, who was former executive vice-president of marketing and sales for A&M/Island/Motown, will be former Mercury/Polydor vice-president of sales, Ken Graydon, who is now vice-president of national accounts, and Ian Marchant, who moves up to the position of national marketing director for PGS from his post as national sales director.

Lacoursiere explains that part of establishing the new division will be the uniting of branches on a local level. "With a united sales team across the country, the PolyGram Group can become more efficient and maximize the opportunities for each of its divisions."

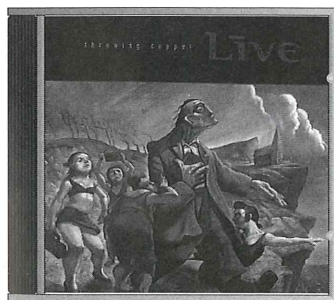

Lacoursiere expects the implementation of the above by June 26.

It was also announced that Allan Reid moves from vice-president of A&R to vice-president of marketing for A&M/Island/Motown. His replacement will be announced shortly.

WALT SAYS . . . !

with Elvira Caprese

The guessing game . . . !

It goes on and on and on. Who is going to succeed BJ? Lots of initials, but most are sucking wind if they think they are even being considered. But, here's a hot, a REAL hot flash. The one to fill BJ's big shoes is already an employee. He happened to represent the company at a recent annual meeting of a member's organization. And, in fact, he was seen recently cooling his heels outside SZ's office in NYC. This could be touchy, but, what the hell. The initials to consider are SE. (EC: Where've you been? He's been considered all along . . . !)

Dumb and dumber . . . ! Some of the deals being offered to these huge conglomerates coming into the country will effect the overall business pretty drastically within a year. They've gone even further than lost-leadering. The guys with the deepest pockets will survive, but barely. There'll be a lot of casualties, and some pretty good marketing people will be hung out to dry. The brain-damaged marketers who are coming into the business don't know where they came from, but that doesn't seem to bother them. They do know what an RA is. So watch out. We'll have a lot more action in February and March. The risk factor is pretty scary. (EC: But think of the potential . . . !)

Phasing out a label . . . ? We could see the end of the name of a well-known holding company. Not the company, the name only. Rumours have it, that one company's that was absorbed a few years ago, and was destined for the grave yard, is more popular than the umbrella company. (EC: I'll have to think on that one over the weekend . . . !)

Sam the biker . . . ! Get a load of that promo on Sam Sniderman's 75th birthday that RPM's new editor-in-chief Sean LaRose has so carefully put together. He's one tough looking dude. He could give the biker's a bad name. Sam's birthday party will be a most important event, and what a setting, the Royal Ontario Museum. (EC: Does dinosaur come to mind?) Don't forget the date, Friday June 2. Tickets are only $99.99. The money goes to the Sniderman Sound Recording Archive at the University of Toronto. Call Brenda Gaze at CRIA

416-967-7272. (EC: If you're in the record business, you better be there . . . !)

I'm drowning . . . ! In case you think those people at the noon party at the Molson Amphitheatre are smiling because they're having a good time . . . !

As social critic for the music industry, I have to tell you that many of them are standing in an inch of water, or in the buffet line that moved at a snail's pace, comparable to a freeloader's convention. Sylvia Train would have given this party . . . (EC: No rating at all . . . !) But the amphitheatre gets a 10-plus. Take a bow . . . Mr. Adams. (EC: Yeah! And happy birthday to his manager !)

How much . . . ? That cash heavy, off-shore company is apparently sweetening its offer for the buyout of a major MAJOR conglomerate. One insider says the deal is so good this time around, that things could get sticky in the boardroom. (EC: Sticky fingers . . . ?)

Out of the ashes . . . ! While some of the industry pundits were calling for chaos and mutiny, and real bloodletting at one of the largest and most visible entertainment empires in the world, there is suddenly a calming effect. There are also signs that one of the turfed-out big-wigs could return. (EC: That could revive the chaos, mutiny and bloodletting . . . !)

A dozen red roses . . . ! The beautiful red roses on the piano at the Variety Club salute to Big Country are from Rose of Sharon. Many in the industry are already aware of the beautiful flowers that come from this showbiz florist. (EC: I'm ready for my closeup, Mr. DeMille . . . !)

The secret file . . . ? There will be cutbacks in a small organization that wouldn't ordinarily make news. It's the way the whole thing is being handled. A couple of very dedicated and devoted employees are going to be hurt, and real bad. If it's any consolation, the perpetrator, heavy on traitor, is walking a very dangerous path. The news next month, just might be about him. (EC: Ooh! That sounds down and dirty . . . !)

The golden handshake . . . ? Watch for the sudden disappearance of a couple of high level executives from a major radio chain. Cutbacks at the mid-management level didn't save enough, so some of the higher-paid do-nothings are being carefully scrutinized. (EC: They won't know what hit them . . . !)

Kevin Hilgers says laugh . . . ! Here's another giggle from CFGP morning guy Kevin Hilgers. "Fellow dies and goes to heaven . . . tells St. Paul at the pearly gates that he'd like to meet the blessed Virgin Mary. Two weeks later he meets her and says, 'I've always wanted to know, how come you never smile in your pictures?' She answers him with, 'Truth be known, Joseph and I wanted a girl.'" (EC: That's a barnburner Kevin . . . !)

Up Cancon country . . . ! Has this been a year for Cancon country, or has this been a year for Cancon country? Since the first of the year, we have had eight #1 hits by Canadian artists. Count 'em,

Charlie Major, One Horse Blue, Shania Twain, Susan Aglukark, George Fox, Patricia Conroy, Prairie Oyster and, this week, just in time for the Big Country Awards, Joel Feeney. Take a bow country radio. They couldn't have done it without you. And NCN can pat themselves on the back as well. (EC: We'll see them all at the Big Country Awards . . . !)

It was 20 years ago . . . ! As we worked on this issue and looked back at 20 years ago, it occurred to me how naive we were back then. How difficult it was for the industry to think only of Nashville and moving there to succeed. Today, we have a thriving industry in this country and studios that are the best in the world, and that's because so many country artists did work in Canada and still call it their home. It was 20 years ago when Jo Walker of the CMA asked me to remind the people in our industry that we couldn't be a branch operation of the Nashville sound. It still hasn't sunk in with a lot of people in Canada. Nashville is in Tennessee. (EC: And that's another country . . . !) That's why they call it country music.

Carroll Baker

An emotional Carroll Baker receives her top country female singer award from BMI Canada's Harold Moon (1975).

Carroll Baker accepts her award as top country female singer at the Big Country Awards in Edmonton (1976).

Carroll Baker, who hosts this year's Big Country Awards for the fourth consecutive year, is warmly regarded as the matriarch of Canadian country music.

Baker won her first Big Country Award in 1975 as the top country female vocalist. The popular Nova Scotian went on to win in the same category for the next four years. She won the coveted award again in 1980, 1981 and 1987, a record that has yet to be beaten.

"The Big Country Awards are the heart and soul of country music in Canada, and winning in 1975 opened the door to many opportunities for me."

It was because of Baker winning a Big Country award that landed her a performance on the Juno Awards in 1976. Stan Klees and Walt Grealis, co-founders of the Juno and Big Country awards suggested to the CBC producers of the show that Baker would "steal the show," and she did. Baker's Juno appearance led to a CBC-TV special the following year. CBC also took Baker to Nashville to tape a special at the Grand Ole Opry. This was the first time a Canadian network had ever taped a special in Nashville with a Canadian country recording artist.

"It seemed like I went from nowhere to everywhere. I had a lot of firsts in my career, and I think that's what helped me to last so long."

Baker has topped the charts many times over her career, and pays tribute to her producer/manager Don Grashey for guiding her through the many obstacles that came with being a country artist. "It was tough being a country artist in Canada in those days. It seemed like it was all rock 'n roll. But I am thankful for the support I did get from country radio. Don was a real friend and very comforting to me." Grashey produced her many #1 charted singles and gold and platinum albums. One of Baker's greatest achievements was her gospel album that went double platinum, another first for her.

Baker continues to tour and expects to release another album in the not-to-distant future. "I've learned a lot over the years. I think I'm a better singer today, and I feel very comfortable in front of an audience, whether it be in a large arena or a smaller concert setting.

"There's one thing about growing old in this business, and that's the friendships that continue and grow stronger each year. My fans are my friends, and that has always been important to me."

Baker has also cultured a large gathering of friends and fans in the UK. As an example of her sometimes hectic tour schedule, Baker flew into Lancaster, England May 26 to headline a music festival the following night (27), returning the next day (28) arriving just in time to host the Big Country Awards.

This year, Baker celebrated another first, her 46th birthday.

CBC to once again televise Big Country Awards

For the fourth consecutive year, the Big Country Awards will be televised across Canada by CBC-Television. While the awards dinner itself takes place on Sunday May 28, the awards program will be broadcast on Wednesday, May 31.

Putting together any type of awards broadcast can be a daunting task. Not only must one deal with the various technical aspects of the show, but the producers must also cope with the often difficult scheduling requirements, not only from a broadcast point of view, but also as far as the artists themselves are concerned.

CBC-TV's Pam Macfarlane has been involved in the production of the Big Country Awards broadcast since the CBC first picked up the program four years ago. She feels that one of the nicer aspects about the awards this year, from a CBC perspective, is the little bit of lead time between the awards event and the broadcast.

"First of all, we're delighted with the number of nominees who are going to be at the awards. From a CBC point of view, rather than editing overnight, as we've done for the last three years to get it on the air on the Monday, we have a little bit of leeway this year because of the hockey playoffs. So we've now got until Wednesday, which gives us a little more time to put it together.

"Although it doesn't get on quite as immediately, it also gives us breathing space, which we're happy about. We're also excited about the fact that we're going to have a satellite pickup with Michelle Wright, who is on tour in Europe at the moment. That's added a new dimension to the show."

Macfarlane, who occupies the title of senior producer of the Big Country Awards, feels that part of the reason the small-budgeted show is so successful is because of the sudden rise in popularity of country music in recent years.

"Yes, it's virtually mainstream now, isn't it. We've always gotten very good ratings on the show, which we're very happy about, and we're certainly hoping for the same this year.

"From the start, I've always been proud of the fact that it's an awards show that moves along at a great pace. It's got a lot of music in it, although unlike the Junos it's not live music. But there is a lot, between the videos and the nominees packages.

So to me, the viewer gets a great little show."

And Macfarlane was full of praise for the show's host, Carroll Baker, who brings a true down-home atmosphere to the awards.

"Carroll Baker is always a tremendous host, she's such a natural, she knows all these people, and she enjoys their winning as much as they do.

"It's really an industry that's very easy to work with. People are enthusiastic, they're interested, and they are really a delight to spend time with."

One change that will take place from a CBC

vantage point at this year's awards is the introduction of a mobile control room, which will allow the producers to create a tighter, more streamlined telecast.

"We'll be doing what is called a live cut. Before, what we would do without the mobile is we'd tape all the cameras we had on the show, and then we'd have to cut it from scratch. This year, with the mobile, we'll have a mobile control room, so we'll do a lot of the cutting at the actual presentation as we go along. So this year, we've gone up a step in the technology."

Unlike most, if not all other awards shows, the Big Country Awards does not feature live performances. While some might see this as a hindrance, Macfarlane agrees that it simply adds to the idea that this is a relaxing night out for the industry.

"To me, it's very different from the Junos. It's an industry awards show. We're not putting that show on. We have cameras covering an event, as opposed to putting on a variety show. It's a low budget show, so we get the best bang for our buck, as they say."

While last year's Big Country telecast drew a respectable viewing audience of 443,000, Macfarlane admits that she has no idea what to expect this year, particularly since the show won't be broadcast on the full network.

"This year, as opposed to being on the full network, it will be on what they call Metro Net, which is all the stations in all the major centres. So, it's a slightly different configuration of the stations. So we really have no idea how the numbers will turn out."

The Big Country Awards go to air on CBC-TV on Wednesday, May 31, at 7 pm ET.

1995 BIG COUNTRY AWARDS Album of the Year contenders

PRAIRIE OYSTER Only One Moon

After making their North American breakthrough with their 1992 release, Everybody Knows, this Toronto-based band really kicked the door in with this May 1994 release that confirmed their reputation as perhaps the most successful new country band in Canada. Co-produced by the band and Steve Fishell, it marked the band's first serious foray into Nashville, where much of the album was recorded and many of the tracks originated. The band has risen a long way from the Queen Street bar circuit, and this is perhaps the most definitive Oyster sounding album yet. While the band was able to remain true to its strong old country roots, with just a touch of bluegrass thrown in, it's been able to tap into the modern new country sound, bringing a freshness to the production that made it that much more appealing at country radio. As with previous albums, the songwriting chores were equally divided between the various band members. Keith Glass wrote four of the 12 tracks, while Russell deCarle and Joan Besen also contributed songs. And the band also tapped into the Nashville songwriting talent pool via the tracks Ancient History (written by Bob DiPiero and John Scott Sherrill), She Don't Get The Blues (by Alan Jackson and Jim McBride) and Always Believing (penned by Pam Tillis and Dave Romeo). The album eventually reached #6 on the RPM Country Albums chart, and spawned the charted hits Such A Lonely One, Louisette, Black Eyed Susan and Don't Cry Little Angel.

THE BARRA MACNEILS Closer To Paradise

After years of playing at dances and fairs in and around their native Cape Breton, the MacNeil family finally won over the majors with this collection of traditional celtic melodies and brilliant originals. The MacNeils have always been capable instrumentalists (as demonstrated on their follow-up record, The Traditional Album), but what really shines through here is their strong vocal capabilities. Lucy MacNeil, in particular, exudes strength and confidence in her singing, most notably on the album's signature song, Darling Be Home Soon, which quickly became a cross-over hit throughout Canada and a regular addition on MuchMusic. While The Rankin Family may have

And the Nominees are

PATRICIA CONROY

This Montreal native arrived on the country scene back in 1990 with her debut album, Blue Angel, an album that displayed enormous promise for the future.

That promise was kept in 1992 with her successful follow-up, Bad Day For Trains. The album yielded four top 10 hits on the country charts, and was eventually tabbed as the album of the year at the 1993 Canadian Country Music Awards. What was particularly gratifying for Conroy was that the album contained three of her own compositions, including the hit Blank Pages, which earned her a 1994 Big Country nomination for country composer.

Conroy's career seemed to come full circle at the 1994 CCMA Awards, where she surprised everyone by winning female artist honours.

It was just after the '94 CCMA's that Conroy released her third album with Warner Music Canada, You Can't Resist. As Conroy herself put it, "I set out to find my own sound, and I did." Produced by Mike Wanchic, the album once again features three Conroy originals (I Don't Wanna Be The One, Crazy Fool and Keep Me Rockin'), and has spawned such hits as the title track and Somebody's Leavin'.

This year, Conroy has picked up three Big Country Nominations, for country album, female artist, and country song (Somebody's Leavin').

JIM WITTER

Music has always been an integral part of Hamilton native Jim Witter's life. Taught to play the piano by his mother, and the guitar by his brother Bob, Witter entertained his friends and family with his talents as early as age seven, writing his first song when he was just 14.

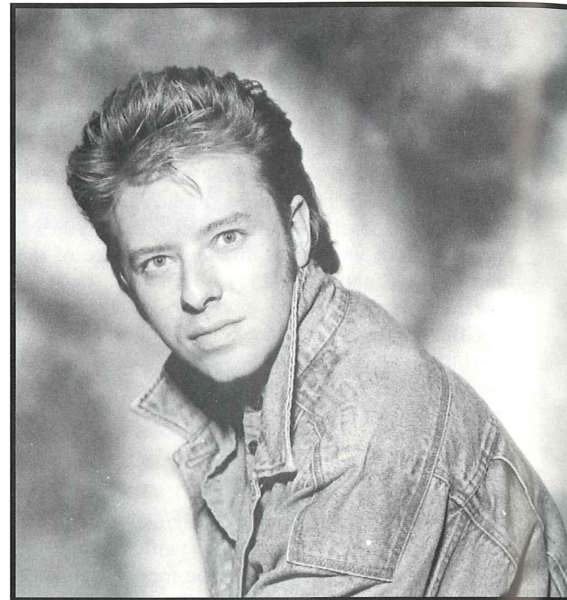

From there, it was on to the various bars and saloons throughout southern Ontario, playing wherever he could, and all the while perfecting his songwriting.

The first big break came with a development deal with Sony Music Publishing in 1992. After signing the deal, Witter flew off to Nashville to set up shop with another Canadian born songwriter, Johnny Douglas. Those first few sessions were fruitful, spawning eventual hits in Distant Drum and Chevy Coupe.

After writing and demoing those songs,

Sony handed the tapes over to Fre Records president Derrick Ross, who obviously liked what he heard. Days after signing with Fre, Witter was back on a plane to Nashville, to begin writing and recording his debut album, eventually released in February of 1993.

More than two years later, Witter's mantle is suddenly cluttered with various awards that his debut album delivered. The record spawned five top ten hits (Stolen Moments, Sweet Sweet Poison, Distant Drum, Everything And More and Chevy Coupe), with Distant Drum being named top Canadian video in 1993 by Country Music Television.

Other honours would soon follow. After being tabbed as top new artist at the '94 Big Country removed the barriers regarding east coast music, the Barra MacNeils have been instrumental in establishing the maritimes as the hidden treasure of music in this country. Closer To Paradise achieved success on both the Adult Contemporary and Country charts, with the album finishing 1994 at #43 on the RPM year-end Country albums chart, and Darling Be Home Soon finishing #73 on the RPM year-end AC chart. The album also garnered the band an impressive six nominations at the recent East Coast Music Awards in Cape Breton.

BLUE RODEO Five Days In July

The title for this latest effort from the Toronto quintet is appropriate, as the album was recorded at a from north of Toronto between July 5 and 9, 1993. What started out being a demo quickly turned into a full-fledged album project, as the band trucked out the Comfort Sound mobile studios to the farm to record the album on site. As Greg Keelor noted, "I think this record captures on 24-tracks what I've always liked best about our blaster rehearsal tapes, with the songs and the playing remaining fresh and spontaneous." Featuring cameo appearances by Sarah McLachlan and cellist Anne Bourne, the album became the band's fifth consecutive release to hit platinum, reaching #11 on the RPM 100 Albums chart. The album only recently dropped off the Albums chart, after an incredible 75 weeks of charting, and has now made an appearance on the RPM Country Albums chart. Songs from that album that reached the top 20 on the RPM 100 Hits chart included Five Days In July, Hasn't Hit Me Yet, Bad Timing and Head Over Heels.

MICHELLE WRIGHT The Reasons Why

Michelle Wright was somewhat hard pressed to follow-up on the success of her momentous 1992 release, Now & Then, an album that spawned five #1 songs and earned her numerous awards and accolades from both Big Country and the Canadian Country Music Association. But the one word that has characterized this artist is perseverance, something she learned through years of playing countless bars and clubs throughout Canada, waiting to get that elusive record deal. Now firmly implanted with Arista Nashville, Wright returned with a strong collection of tracks on this 1994 release, reassuring everyone that she wasn't about to go away quietly. Record stores had the album in the top ten virtually the same day it was released, a testament to her sudden popularity. Wright incorporated the best of Nashville's songwriting and producing talent in the making of this record, with five different producers signing on. The album quickly shot up the charts, hitting gold when it was initially released, and platinum just a few months later. The album reached #4 on the RPM Country Albums chart, spawning hit singles in The Wall, Safe In The Arms Of Love, One Good Man and the title track.

1995 Big Country Awards Special Issue

Awards, Witter grabbed five nominations for the '94 CCMA's, winning for video of the year for Stolen Moments. He also earned two Juno nominations in 1994 (best new solo artist, country male vocalist), and another in 1995 (country male vocalist).

With his sophomore album set to be released later this summer, Witter hopes that the Big Country Awards will be the start of a good second half of 1995. This year, Witter is nominated for male artist and country songwriter (along with Johnny Douglas) for Stolen Moments.

SHANIA TWAIN

Growing up in Ontario's northlands, more specifically Timmins, life was never a piece of cake for Shania Twain. From the time she could walk, her parents were more than enthusiastic about leading Twain into a musical career. They often pulled her out of bed after 1 pm to go play with the band at the local club, and eventually had her performing on every TV station, radio station and community centre in the area.

Things took a remarkably tragic detour, however, when both of Twain's parents were killed in a car accident when she was 21. It immediately made her responsible for the rest of the family, and in a warped kind of way, propelled her even further into a musical career. Twain took a singing job at Deerhurst Inn in Huntsville, a job that helped round the rough edges of her singing talent.

Luckily for Twain, instead of heading to Nashville, Nashville came to her, in the form of Nashville entertainment lawyer Richard Frank, who came to see her show. It was via Frank that she met with producer Norro Wilson, who in turn introduced her to Mercury Nashville's Buddy Cannon. Just like that, Twain was signed to Mercury Nashville.

Twain's self-titled debut album spawned such charted favourites as What Made You Say That and Dance With The One That Brought You, and earned her a Rising Video Star award from CMT Europe.

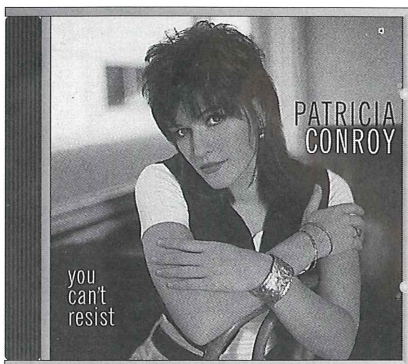

Twain's life took a significant turn again in 1994 when she married world-famous rock producer Robert John 'Mutt' Lange. Not surprisingly, Lange lent his writing and producing talents to Twain's latest release, The Woman In Me. That album has quickly become a favourite at new country radio, spawning hits in Whose Bed Have Your Boots Been Under and Any Man Of Mine, with the album itself hitting #1 on the RPM Country Albums chart (April 17/95).

This year, Twain has been nominated in the Big Country Award category of outstanding new artist.

PATRICIA CONROY

You Can't Resist

It is indeed hard to resist this Montreal native, who first turned heads in Canadian country circles with her 1992 release, Bad Day For Trains, signifying another bright new addition to the growing field of female country artists in this country, along with Michelle Wright, Lisa Brokop and others. As well as contributing three tracks of her own, Conroy took a lengthy trip down to Nashville, where she spent days going over song after song, looking for the ones that best fit the Patricia Conroy style. Conroy said that she was setting out to find her own style, and she did that, and more, with this Warner Music Canada release that quickly caught the attention of radio programmers throughout the country. Of course, Conroy was already riding high, thanks to her surprise win as top female artist at the '94 CCMA's, the type of promotional push the record company couldn't have dreamed of. The lead track, Somebody's Leavin', quickly shot to #1 on the RPM Country Tracks chart, after just seven weeks of charting. The album did equally as well, reaching #3 on the RPM Country Albums chart, held out of the top spot by two releases from country superstars Reba McEntire and Garth Brooks. The album has gone on to produce hit singles in What Else Can I Do and the title track.

PRAIRIE OYSTER

It was the album Everybody Knows that really propelled this Toronto band into the first ranks of Canadian country artists. That album became the band's first platinum seller, produced several charted singles, and earned the band numerous honours, including two Junos.

The 1992 release also brought the band a slew of 1992 Big Country awards, including Canadian country artist of the year, country album and group, and single and country composer (Something To Remember You By). The album also produced another honour at the '93 awards for country composer for Joan Besen (One Time Around).

Only One Moon is perhaps the band's strongest album to date, offering a compelling mix of classic country style and various other influences. As lead singer/songwriter Russell deCarle noted, "it's probably the most purely Prairie Oyster album we've done."

Co-produced by the band and Steve Fishell, the album has produced several charted singles, including Such A Lonely One, Louisette, Black Eyed Susan and the title track. The album continues to reside on the RPM Country Albums chart, after an impressive 55 weeks on the chart.

At last year's Big Country Awards, Prairie Oyster picked up the award for top group, and this year's event could be even more rewarding for the band. The band is nominated for five awards: country album, group or duo, country song (Such A Lonely One), and twice for country songwriter, with deCarle (Such A Lonely One) and Keith Glass (Louisette) both earning nominations.

PRESCOTT/BROWN

If musical pedigree means anything in this business, than this band should be a mainstay in Canadian country music circles for years to come. The Family Brown is still the most successful country band in Canadian musical history, winning top group at the Big Country awards an incredible 10 times.

When the Family Brown faded into history, both Barry and sister Tracey decided to keep the family's musical spirit alive, forming their own group with Tracey's husband, veteran producer Randall Prescott, under the name Tracey Prescott & Lonesome Daddy.

Unfortunately, the name seemed to cause more confusion than one might expect. As Randall Prescott pointed out, "We were playing a telethon in Ottawa, and we got introduced as Tracey Prescott and Big Daddy." It was after that that the group decided to change the name permanently, and in many ways, a new attitude.

The group's latest album, Already Restless, marked a significant departure for the band members, as they recorded the majority of the record in Nashville under the auspices of Sony Nashville's executive vice-president Paul Worley, who served as the album's producer. A great deal of recording was also done in the band's own studio, at their home in the Ottawa Valley.

Prescott/Brown has been nominated this year in the category of top duo or group.

QUARTETTE

Quartette actually came about in the summer of 1993, when Colleen Peterson was booked to perform at Toronto's Harbourfront, and suggested to promoters that she might bring along fellow artists Sylvia Tyson, Caitlin Hanford and Cindy Church. The group rehearsed two days prior to the show, knocked everyone in the audience flat with their performance, and realized that it might become a permanent gig.

The names are synonymous with country music in Canada. Sylvia Tyson is best known as one-half of the legendary duo of Ian And Sylvia, widely regarded as the queen of Canadian country/folk, and an inductee into the Juno Hall of Fame. She herself has six solo albums to her credit, the most recent being Gypsy Cadillac in 1992.

Alberta native Cindy Church first came to prominence as a backing singer with Ian Tyson's band, and after a brief stint with the Great Western Orchestra, ventured into a solo career with her recent debut album, Love On The Range.

Peterborough's Colleen Peterson was a country music television regular throughout the '70s, and played with the likes of Gordon Lightfoot,

Charlie Daniels, Waylon Jennings and Marty Stuart. Her career is back in swing with a new song and video, and the additional profile via Quartette. Caitlin Hanford has released two albums with husband Chris Whiteley and The Adobe Brothers Band, and is a regular on the folk festival scene.

This year, Quartette is nominated for outstanding new artist at the Big Country Awards.

CHARLIE MAJOR

Life has been pretty good for this Ottawa Valley native thus far, and things can only get better. It's not too often that an artist achieves this type of success with a debut album, and the country music world is now waiting to see what this Arista artist will do next.

Luckily for Major, his career was off to a roaring start before he even recorded his own album. In 1990, Major's penning of Backroads was recorded by American country star Ricky Van Shelton, eventually rising to the top of the US country charts. Other artists such as Matt Minglewood and Patricia Conroy have recorded his songs.

Interestingly enough, Major admits that he was fielding offers to record as early as ten years ago, but simply felt he wasn't quite ready to record. "I couldn't do it, because I hadn't realized fully who Charlie Major was."

When the time came to record, he did it right, signing with Arista/BMG, and traveling down to Nashville to record with red-hot producer Steve Fishell and a core of veteran players. The results truly speak for themselves.

The Other Side produced an incredible six #1 songs on the RPM Country Hits chart - the title track, I'm Gonna Drive You Out Of My Mind, I'm Somebody, Nobody Gets Too Much Love, It Can't Happen To Me and I'm Here. And the awards began to pour in. At the 1994 Big Country Awards, Major walked away with five awards, including male artist, album, country song and composer with Barry Brown (for I'm Gonna Drive You Out Of My Mind) and Canadian country artist of the year.

With The Other Side still residing on the RPM Country Albums chart, after an incredible 93 weeks, Major is busy preparing for his much anticipated follow-up release. This year, Major has picked up four Big Country nominations, including male artist, country songwriter (Nobody Gets Too Much Love) and twice for country song (Nobody Gets Too Much Love and The Other Side).

DESERT DOLPHINS

Like many new country artists, the Desert Dolphins can attribute much of their musical interest to their roots.

Lead singer and group leader Grant Heywood is the son of legendary cowboy singer and Canadian country hall of famer Earl Heywood. The son obviously learned his lessons well, as the Desert Dolphins have quickly become one of the hottest new acts on the Canadian country music scene.

The Dolphins, which also consists of keyboardist Peter Beacock, bassist Sean Gilders, and guitarist Daniel Davies, have honed their skills with extensive club gigs throughout southern and central Ontario, and the results are finally paying off.

In 1994, the band signed a deal with the fledgling independent label Wolfe Lake Music, and brought in veteran producer Randall Prescott to produce their debut effort.

The result was a top ten single on the RPM Country tracks with the song Dynamite, and this year, a Big Country Award nomination in the category of outstanding new artist.

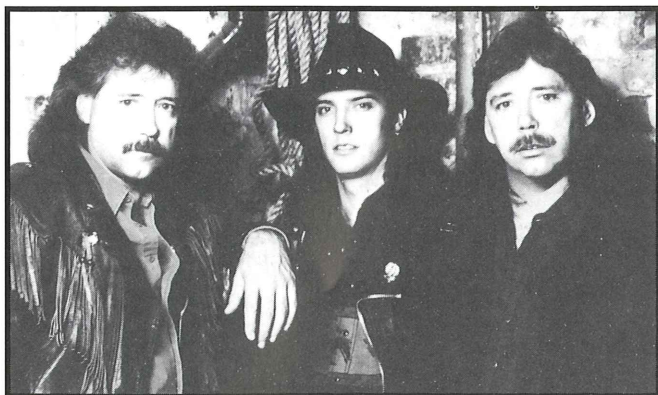

THE GOODS

Celebrating the 20th anniversary of the band, So Many Roads also marked the 10th album from brothers Bruce and Brian Good, who brought in Bruce's son Travis to keep the family's sound new and fresh.

The Good Brothers, like the Family Brown, is a group whose lengthy history is inundated with accolades and honours. The band scored eight Juno Awards for country group between 1974-78, and 1981-84, all the while touring extensively throughout Canada.

So Many Roads, released in the spring of 1994, was a mixture of both Goods originals and some classic country and rock material. The album featured classics such as Bob Seger's Against The Wind, The Band's The Shape I'm In and Gordon Lightfoot's Alberta Bound, as well as their own concert favourite, Fox On The Run.

The Goods profile is perhaps greater now than it has been in many years, thanks in part to their cover of Stompin' Tom Connors' Hockey Song, which appeared on Attic Records' compilation album, Contact, and has been heard at hockey arenas throughout Canada in the past year.

The Goods are nominated this year in the category of top duo or group at this year's Big Country Awards.

GEORGE FOX

As Fox himself says it, "It's been six years since Warner Music Canada turned over a rock somewhere in the foothills of Alberta to discover me and my music." And it's been a pretty impressive five year run for Fox.

It was 1988 that Fox first appeared on Canadian country radio with his debut album on Warner Music. A year later, Fox released his sophomore effort, With All My Might, an album that earned him Big Country Awards for male vocalist, and single and composer (Angelina), and eventually album of the year. It also earned him Juno and CCMA Awards for country male vocalist.

In 1991, Fox released Spice Of Life, again garnering country male vocalist honours at Big Country, the Junos and the CCMA's.

It was in 1993 that Fox released his album Mustang Heart, an album he felt was the record he'd always wanted to make. And again, the awards rolled in, as Fox won for male vocalist at both Big Country and the CCMA's.

Along with his impressive awards history, Fox has also been the host of the Canadian Country Music Awards since 1991. Fox has never strayed far from the camera lights, having hosted two country television specials of his own in 1990 and 1991, with another on tap for this year.

The 1995 Big Country Awards sees Fox nominated once again for top male artist.

JOAN KENNEDY

From her days singing in the church choir in her hometown of Douglas Harbour, New Brunswick, Joan Kennedy has always epitomized the true country artist. She knows where she comes from, and she's never lost sight of her rural roots.

With her most recent release, Higher Ground, Kennedy has come full circle, attaining success both in Canada and the US with songs that touch her audiences as much as they do Kennedy herself. The result is a nomination for to female artist at this year's Big Country Awards.

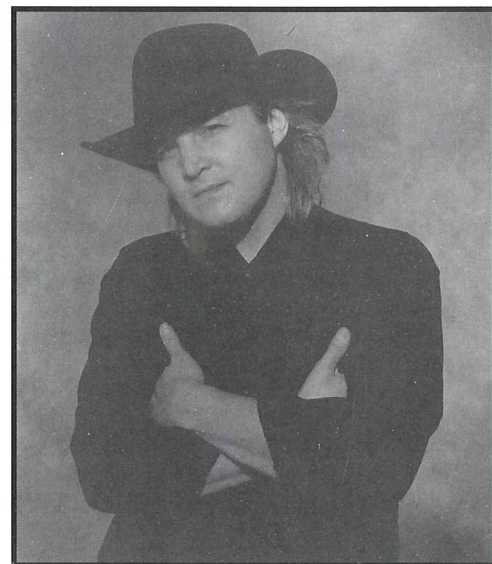

Higher Ground is Kennedy's fifth album, and undoubtedly her most successful. Produced by Mike 'Pepe' Francis, the record features 11 truly country tracks, chosen from the 1,000 or so songs submitted to her from writers across North America.

Although it seemed unlikely that Kennedy would surpass the success of her last album, Candle In The Window, Higher Ground has done just that.

In the past year, Kennedy has signed on with the Chris Hughes Company, which now handles her press and publicity. Kennedy looks to have a new album released to radio in the coming months.

JOEL FEENEY

Being the son of a prominent figure in Canadian country music history, Joel Feeney grew up listening to the sounds of Canadian country. But father Jack wasn't his only influence, as artists like The Eagles and Poco also helped mold Feeney's country/pop sound.

That sound first came to the forefront on Feeney's first release, Joel Feeney And The Western Front, which produced five charted singles and led to a Juno Award as top country group for 1992. The album also garnered Feeney a Big Country Award for outstanding new artist.

Two years later, Feeney released his debut on MCA Records Canada, Life Is But A Dream, working closely with collaborator Chris Farren, who co-wrote many of the tracks and also co-produced the album.

Life Is But A Dream established this former studio player and songwriter as an artist of the highest quality. The album spawned several top 20 singles, including Say The Word, By Heart, and the title track.

Currently set to release his next solo project, which he's producing with country renegade Tim Thorney, Joel Feeney is nominated this year in the category of top male artist.

SUSAN AGLUKARK

Born in Churchill, Manitoba, Aglukark and her family moved around the Northwest Territories for the first 12 years of her life, before finally settling in Arviat, NWT.

Initially, Aglukark seemed destined to involve herself in a political life, initially employed by the department of Indian and northern affairs as a linguist, later taking a position with the political lobby group Inuit Tapirisat. It was almost by accident that she forayed into a musical career.

In the three years since she gave her first public performance in her hometown, her career has

Around, and the biggest hit of her career, Take It Like A Man, which hit the top 10 in the US, while the video hit #1 on CMT.

The Academy Of Country Music named Wright the top new female vocalist in 1993, while back home, she picked up an astonishing 15 awards based on the success of Now & Then, including CCMA artist of the year, Big Country's artist of the year, and a Juno for country female vocalist. Now & Then eventually surpassed double platinum in Canada.

In 1994, Wright released her third Arista album, The Reasons Why, produced by longtime friend Steve Bogard, Val Garay, Mike Clute and John Guess. The album quickly shipped gold, eventually rising to platinum in a few short months.

Wright, currently in the midst of a European tour, is nominated for three Big Country Awards this year, including country album, female artist and country song (One Good Man).

taken off. First she appeared on a CBC radio eastern Arctic compilation, eventually releasing her own contribution independently. In 1992 she released her first full-length indie album, Arctic Rose, which did tremendously well in the north and led to her signing with EMI Music Canada.

EMI released her Christmas album in December 1993, later followed by the re-release of Arctic Rose in the spring of 1994, an album produced by Randall Prescott.

Since the release of Arctic Rose, Aglukark has quickly become a household name in Canada. She's been featured in such publications as Saturday Night and The New York Times, and Maclean's Magazine named her one of Canada's Leaders To Watch For. She's performed before two prime ministers and Queen Elizabeth II. In September of '94, she received the Vista Rising Star award at the Canadian Country Music Awards.

Aglukark recently released her first album for EMI Music Canada, This Child. The album quickly rose up the RPM Country Albums chart, hitting #1 on May 22. The lead single, O Siem, did equally as well, reaching the #1 slot on the RPM Adult Contemporary chart (March 20/95) and Country Tracks chart (April 3/95).

This year, Aglukark is nominated in the category of outstanding new artist at the 1995 Big Country Awards.

MICHELLE WRIGHT

Growing up in smalltown southwestern Ontario, Wright was brought up on the country sounds of her parents, tagging along with them when they performed shows at various clubs and community centres in and around their hometown.

After playing in various bands in high school, she ventured out on her own, touring throughout Canada and the US, and eventually signing with Savannah Records, who released her first Canadian album, Do Right By Me, in 1988.

Through some arduous touring and independent records, Wright's popularity steadily grew. Eventually, her talent received some notice south of the border, where Wright eventually signed on with Arista Nashville.

While her 1990 self-titled Arista debut drew some rave reviews in country circles, it wasn't until the release of her second album, Now & Then, that Wright was on her way to stardom. That album went on to produce five #1 hits, including the title track, He Would Be Sixteen, Guitar Talk, One Time

ONE HORSE BLUE

One Horse Blue has evolved over its 15-year history into western Canada's premier new country vocal group. A series of lineup changes during the years has resulted in its current roster as it appears on Starting All Over Again, the band's debut on the Savannah Records label.

The unique feature about the band is the interplay between the three vocalists, Michael Shelland, Rocko Vaugeois and Gord Maxwell. According to Vaugeois, the reason for this is historical. "None of us wants to carry the load alone. We've matured way beyond that kind of glory trip."

The group has experience tremendous success in western Canada, particularly in Alberta and Saskatchewan. One Horse Blue won three consecutive BC Country Music Association awards for group of the year (1992-94).

One Horse Blue has quickly become a perennial attendee at awards shows. Nominated for group of the year at last year's Big Country Awards, the group is once again tabbed in that category this year.

THE RANKIN FAMILY

A unique band that has achieved an enormous amount of cross-format success, these natives of Mabou, Cape Breton have quickly become favourites of both adult contemporary and country radio, and the awards have piled in in the meantime.

The Rankins success story really began with the album and song Fare Thee Well Love. The album ended up at #2 on the 1994 RPM year-end Country Albums chart, and #13 on the RPM year-end Albums chart. In the same year-end charts, the band's follow-up album, North Country, reached #20 on the Country Albums chart and #37 on the 100 Albums chart.

While the chart success signified their arrival at radio, the Rankin Family didn't truly become a household name until their stunning performance at the 1994 Juno Awards. That year, the band took home an impressive four awards, including group of the year, and the coveted entertainer of the year.

If any group can be single-handedly credited with spurring the rise of a form of music, it can be the Rankins, whose sudden rush of popularity heralded the arrival of Celtic music as a popular mainstream genre, and led to a mass influx of record company A&R reps into the maritimes, looking for more talent.

Long considered one of the finest live acts in Canadian music, this year The Rankins are nominated for group of the year at the Big Country Awards, while Jimmy Rankin gets a nod in the songwriter category, for his penning of North Country.

ANNE MURRAY

Murray is one of the Canadian originals. Since her first charted single in 1970 with Bidin' My Time, which reached #48 on the RPM Country chart (soon followed by the #1 smash Snowbird), Murray has charted more than 50 singles on the country chart, including 37 top 10 hits and 21 #1 songs.

Her unparalleled success has been recognized with both the Order Of Canada and her recent induction into the Juno Hall Of Fame.

Murray has won nine Big Country awards in her career. Her first was for country female vocalist in 1979, while her latest was in 1988 for the same honour. Her albums continue to sell well, with EMI recently honouring her career by releasing a four-CD box set, entitled The Best...So Far. As well, she continues to be a consistently huge draw whenever and wherever she plays, drawing sell-out crowds throughout Canada and the US.

Last year, Murray was nominated for female artist and album of the year at Big Country for Croonin', her ode to the songs of her youth. This year, Murray is once again nominated for top female artist.

LISA BROKOP

The Lisa Brokop story begins in Surrey, BC, where she began performing in a little band with her parents when she was just seven years of age. By the time she was 11, she was sitting in with other local bands, and learning the true tricks of the trade.

At 15, Brokop joined the Marty Gillan and Sweetwater band as a singer, rhythm guitarist and keyboardist. She launched her own band shortly thereafter, and released Daddy, Sing To Me, her first indie single. In 1991, she won CKWX's Nashville Songwriting Contest, a victory that enabled her to co-write with Music City's Peter McCann. McCann would release her first album, My Love, on his own Libre label, featuring six of his own tracks, plus four Brokop singles.

In 1990, the BC Country Music Association named her its Horizon Award winner and gospel performer of the year. She went on to win BCCMA female vocalist honours in 1992-93, along with the BCCMA's international achievement award (1993). It was via manager Paul Masciola that Brokop made her way to the Patriot Records label in Nashville, with label president Jimmy Bowen hand-picking producer Jerry Crutchfield to handle Brokop's debut on the label.

The result of that tandem was Brokop's breakthrough album, Every Little Girl's Dream, which has quickly given her a prominent place among Canada's top country artists. The album has produced two hit singles, Give Me A Ring Sometime and Take That, and earned Brokop a Big Country nomination as top female artist.

FARMER'S DAUGHTER

Seemingly from left field, this Vancouver based trio has quickly become one of the hottest tickets in the Canadian country music field. As they themselves say, it's your standard overnight success story, with a lifetime of work to back it up.

The group's debut CD, Girls Will Be Girls, was shot out of a cannon, quickly earning some radio airtime, and eventually capturing the trio a BC Country Music Association award in 1994 for album of the year.

The CD has produced four hits on the RPM Country charts in Girls Will Be Girls, I Wanna Hold

You, Family Love and, most recently, Son Of A Preacherman, and ultimately garnered the group two Juno nominations, for best new group and country duo or group.

The three members are truly prairie girls. Cousins Jake Leiske and ShaunaRae Samograd began singing with the family gospel group when they were still children. Jake went on to tour endlessly, record four albums, and host a weekly TV show in California, while ShaunaRae sang in various groups throughout high school and university in Canada and the US. Angela Kelman has been featured on radio and television showcases throughout North America.

This year, Farmer's Daughter is nominated for outstanding new artist at the 1995 Big Country Awards.

TERRY KELLY

A former Olympic torch bearer in 1988, Terry Kelly, whose third album, Divided Highway on the Gun Records label was released at the end of 1992, is nominated for top male artist at this year's Big Country Awards.

Divided Highway has produced several singles that have reached the RPM Country Tracks chart, including In My Father's House, which peaked at #28, We Can Do Anything (a duet with Kelita), which peaked at #27; There Goes The Fire, which hit #22; The Girl Is On A Roll Tonight, which peaked at #10, and the latest single, Heart Set On You, which currently sits at #26 on the Country chart.

Kelly's official musical career spans back to 1984 and his first album, On The Move. In 1988, he followed up with his second album, Face To Face. In 1991, he recorded the song, The Ties That Bind, for a commemorative cassette supporting a fund-raising effort for Joseph R. Smallwood's Heritage Foundation's Encyclopedia of Newfoundland and Labrador.

Over the years, Kelly has shared the stage with the likes of Helen Reddy, Rita MacNeil, The Oak Ridge Boys and Ricky Van Shelton, and also played in front of Princess Margaret during her visit to Nova Scotia. He also has a school show entitled We Can Do Anything, that plays to both the primary grades to grade six levels, as well as the grade seven to 12 levels.

Joel Feeney has a #1 single, his first, with What Kind Of Man, a song he co-wrote with Chris Farren. The track was taken from his MCA album, Life Is But A Dream, which was produced by Farren and Hayward Parrott.

George Fox has the big gainer this week. His latest WEA release, First Comes Love, bullets into the #39 slot from #75 after only the second week of charting. Taken from his album, Time Of My Life, the song was written by Fox and producer Bob Gaudio.

John Michael Montgomery has the most added single, with Sold (The Grundy County Auction Incident) entering the chart at #81. Montgomery is never too far away from the charts with each of his releases. He has become one of the favourites of Canadian country programmers. He just finished a run up the charts with I Can Love You Like That, which is now descending slowly (#28). Both tracks were taken from his John Michael album, released on the Atlantic label.

Jason McCoy is out of the gate with what could be the big one for him. This Used To Be Our Town, a song he wrote with Nashville writers, Denny Carr and Chris Lindsey, is getting the heavy promotion treatment from MCA's network of promotion and sales people. The song enters the chart at #85. Interesting enough, McCoy was doing pretty good with Ghosts, which is still getting heavy airplay and sits at #29. McCoy's new album, his debut for MCA, will be released in early June. The album was produced by Scott Baggett.

Don Neilson should make good chart gains with his latest Epic/Them release, Easy To Say, which enters the chart at #86. Neilson wrote the song with Tim Thorney and Erica Ehm. The same trio produced the album.

Vince Gill has a winner with You Better Think Twice, a song he wrote with Reed Nielsen. The release, which enters the chart at #89, was taken from his new MCA album, When Love Finds You, The album was produced by Tony Brown.

Bobby LaLonde, who hasn't seen chart action in some time, looks pretty good with his release of Reinvented Love. Written by LaLonde and his longtime producer friend Gilles Godard, the single gets a chart position at #90. This is a new and vibrant LaLonde, and he should rekindle past friendships with country radio programmers very quickly. The track was taken from his upcoming album, Count On Me, which he produced himself for his own Bolab label. The track is included on Hillcrest CD 24.

Rhett Akins has a hit with That Ain't My Truck, a powerful summer outing, that should gain him top of the chart action within a few short weeks. The track was taken from his MCA album, A Thousand Memories, which was produced by Mark Wright. Akins wrote the song with Tom Shapiro and Chris Waters. This is the follow-up to I Brake For Brunettes, which had a run of 13 weeks on the chart.

The Blue Shadows are back. The Vancouver-based quartette comprises Billy Cowsill on vocals and rhythm guitar, Jeffrey Hatcher on vocals and lead guitar, bassist Barry Muir, who also assists on backup vocals and drummer J.B. Johnson. The country-rock band lets go with Riding Only Down, the first single and video from their album, Lucky To Me. Sony is expecting big things from this band, so watch for a high-powered promotion to get the single into gear.

Susan Graham follows her chart-actioned single, Beating Of My Heart, with the release of her new New West album, Somewhere In Between. The song was written by Kye Fleming and Mary Ann Kennedy. The single is already charting nationally, and bullets into the #45 slot on the RPM Country 100 this week from #52. The album was produced by Bob Bullock and Jamie Klee and recorded at Metalworks Studio in Toronto and Battery Studio in Nashville.

Crooked Stovepipe is off and running with their Newfoundland Bluegrass album, released on the Gander-based Third Wave label. The five-man bluegrass band was founded in 1970 by international authority and author on bluegrass music, Neil Rosenberg. A close listen to the album reveals a gentle mix of American bluegrass with what is described as "a unique blend of Newfoundland bluegrass music." Besides Rosenberg, the band is made up of fiddler Don Randell, guitarist Ted Rowe, who also does lead vocals, Scott Swinden on mandolin, bassist Jim Rillie, and guest artist Baxter Wareham on three-row button accordion. Watch for a review of the album in an upcoming issue.

Laura Vinson and Free Spirit are getting the royal promotion treatment with the release of their debut for the Homestead label. Roots That Go Deep is the first single to be taken from the upcoming album, Voices On The Wind. The single goes to radio June 5. Homestead is based in Edmonton.

Tineta's new single, From My Heart's Point Of View, is only two-parts Cancon, instead of four as indicated on Royalty's CD radio sampler 17. Apparently the label had been informed that the writers, D. King and D. Woodward, were Canadian.

They are, in fact, Nashville writers. The track still qualifies as Cancon however, having been wholly produced at Edmonton's Damon/Soundtrek Studio. The single is the follow-up to Walkin' That Line, which is now descending the chart (#70), after 17 weeks.

CKTY 110 Sarnia, with Today's Hot New Country format, and the area police forces, raised almost $15,000 through the fifth annual Special Olympics Radiothon. The radiothon took place on May 19 between 6 am and noon and featured area police officers from all detachments, many of whom were scheduled to take part in the Torch Run on May 25. CKTY's Mark Cartland reports that the radiothon was a great morale booster for the station's staff and all the volunteers who helped out in the studios.
