Details for Big Sky Concert announced

Tickets will go on sale Saturday, June 3 for Big Sky, Canada's Concert, the three-day, all-Canadian music festival taking place on August 5, 6 and 7 in High River, Alberta.

The Bay also confirmed the addition of artists Tom Cochrane, Moist, The Tea Party, Rita MacNeil and George Fox to the already-impressive list of talent lined-up for this one-of-a-kind event.

Tickets will be made available for each of the three days, along with two and three-day packages. The Bay is also offering a special Early Bird discount price for those ordering their tickets within the first 325 hours they go on sale.

Single day passes range from $39.50 for day one, to $44.50 for day three, with an approximate six dollar savings per ticket if booked within the first 325 hours. The two-day pass is offered for $77, while the three-day ducat goes for $115. Early bird prices for the two and three-day passes are $67 and $99, respectively.

Tickets are available through any Ticketmaster outlet in any of the major centres in Canada. As well, tickets will be available in Saskatchewan through the Saskatchewan Centre box office and all CBO outlets in Regina, and in Saskatoon at the Centennial Auditorium and all CBO outlets.

Tickets can also be purchased by mail

HMV Group reports record sales and profit

HMV Group chairman Stuart McAllister has announced record sales and profits for the international music retailer for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1995.

HMV has recorded operating profits of £14 million on sales which have increased by 25% to £503 million. McAllister made the announcement at the recent Thorn-EMI interim meeting in London, England on May 23. HMV also recently purchased the UK-based Dillons book shop chain.

According to McAllister, "HMV has performed extremely well in the established markets of Canada and the United Kingdom. A very strong performance was also turned in by HMV in Japan, and new growth and investment operations in Hong Kong and the United States."

It was also announced that HMV Canada sales passed the $200 million milestone in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1995.

through Big Sky, Canada's Concert, c/o Ticketmaster, #310, 237-8th Avenue, S.E., Calgary, Alberta T2G 5C3.

Telephone orders from Quebec, the maritimes, Newfoundland, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories can be made by calling 1-800-583-3588.

The lineup for day one (Saturday, August 5), includes The Rankin Family, Sarah McLachlan, Blue Rodeo, Colin James, Susan Aglukark, Ashley MacIsaac and Buffy Sainte-Marie.

Day two (Aug. 6) will feature Celine Dion, David Foster, Anne Murray, Rita MacNeil, Michelle Wright, Burton Cummings and George Fox. Day three (Aug. 7) will spotlight Bryan Adams, Tom Cochrane, Jann Arden, Moist and The Tea Party.

Big Sky will also offer a special daytime line-up for children, headlined by Fred Penner, star of the CBC-TV show Fred Penner's Place, with children under 10 getting in free.

Big Sky will also feature some of the top new bands in the country on the New Music Stage. Bands confirmed for that venue thus far include Age Of Electric, Bluebeard, The Bourbon Tabernacle Choir, Earthtones, Hard Rock Miners, Not Going To Vegas, Red Autumn Fall, Sisters and Taste Of Joy.

Proceeds from the concert will go to fund The Bay's Adventurers Foundation, a non-profit

FACTOR announces numerous changes to programs

The Foundation To Assist Canadian Talent On Records (FACTOR) has announced a series of changes to its various programs. The changes were finalized at the organizations annual board meeting held on May 17.

In regards to the FACTOR loan program, FACTOR will no longer recognize self-distribution as being acceptable distribution to this program. Applicants that do not have a distribution deal in place or are self-distributing their projects are eligible to apply to the Independent Artists Recording Loan Program.

As for the Independent Artists Recording Loan Program, artists that secure a license deal with a non-Canadian owned or controlled label will be required to reimburse FACTOR within 30 days of the deal. If the artist independently

Ken Wells to manager PolyGram Group Distribution

Gerry Lacoursiere, Chairman of PolyGram Group of Canada, has announced the appointment of Ken Wells to the position of general manager, PolyGram Group Distribution.

Wells will oversee all aspects of the Group's production and distribution from its headquarters in Oshawa, Ontario.

Wells began his career in A&M's warehouse in 1974. He moved into production in 1983, taking on the role of production manager in 1986. He transferred to PolyGram in 1991, where he assumed the position of product planning manager, before being appointed director of operations of PGD in the fall of 1994.

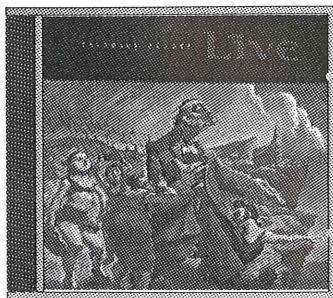

In making the above announcement, Lacoursiere noted, "We are very fortunate to have someone the calibre of a Ken Wells to fill this key position, and with Ken and his team, we look forward to becoming the #1 distribution centre in Canada."

releases the project or secures a license deal with a Canadian owned or controlled label, FACTOR's standard repayment level of 50 cents per cassette and 75 cents per CD will remain the same.

According to FACTOR's executive director, Heather Sym, "The changes to the FACTOR Loan and Independent Artists Recording Loan Programs are in keeping with FACTOR's industrial strategy of trying to help build the infrastructure of the Canadian independent recording industry."

Finally, in regards to international marketing, FACTOR's board has been left with no option, due to the ever-increasing demand on a small budget, to recognize the cost for only one person per international marketing trip. This change is retroactive to April 1, 1995, and affects the applications that were submitted for the April 28 deadline.

WALT SAYS . . . !

Big bucks for Cancon . . . !

When a Canadian artist makes it internationally, Canada seems to automatically turn off. The print media, television and radio people, bookers, promoters, club owners, record company people, if they don't have them on their label, and even Joe public, take great delight in putting them down. Well, that was the case. But look what's happening. We have a Canadian, who has become an international star, enjoying incredible international press and, surprise, it's even spread to Canada. This artist has become so much in demand that an incredible, and I mean VERY BIG, fee is being offered for one performance. When the west coast grizzly hears how much, he'll be on the red eye, demanding more for his client. (EC: He won't get it . . . !)

Big Country! Yeah . . . ! Canada's country star system was on parade this past weekend, and CBC-TV producers Sandra Faire, Pam Macfarlane and Bronwyn Warren captured all the excitement as these stars were paraded before the cameras. The Big Country Awards, hosted by Carroll Baker, was another triumph, at least in the bar where I was watching them. The patrons actually cheered when the winners were announced. It was very funny. These hard-core sports nuts didn't even question why Duane Feely, the general manager of Belamy's/Leaside, had patched all the restaurant TV sets into the awards. He happens to be a country fan. In fact, he attended the awards show, and even saw himself in a crowd shot. (EC: That's a good reason to watch the show . . . !)

Canada's national newspaper . . . ? Of all the dailies in Canada, the one that brands itself as "Canada's National Newspaper," should do something about its nationalism, particularly in the entertainment, sorry The Arts, section. Liam Lacey, writing in Scanners (May 12), structured what looked like an excellent article on country. He obviously likes the New Country Network over "the hard-core American Nashville Network." As for NCN, he writes that it's "slick and seamless and crosses the lines between Canadian and American music, pop and country," which is right on. He also sugars NCN's existence as "the best adult contemporary music channel on television." I can see NCN's Shaun Purdue cranking out the press release on that one. I thought with Canada's country star system all over the radio and television and other newspapers, surely Lacey would do a little flagwaving. Not so! Outside of Farmer's Daughter, every artist he mentioned was from south of the border. Lacey has some catching up to do. Even the worst-informed navel-gazing entertainment writers have heard of Anne Murray, Michelle Wright, Patricia Conroy, Charlie Major, Rita MacNeil, Prairie Oyster, Shania Twain, George Fox, Jim Witter, One Horse Blue, Blue Rodeo, and the list goes on and on. (EC: And so do you . . . !)

Celine Dion is happening . . . ! Celine Dion was in England recently where she was squired around London town by Paul Burger. Remember him? He's the guy who went to the wall for her and forced open the right doors. Her English-language album, The Colour Of My Love, has sold more than a million copies in the UK, which makes her the first female artist to sell a million albums over there. The album, which has gone multi-platinum in more than 26 countries, has sold close to nine million copies worldwide. Sony Canada president Rick Camilleri is predicting the album will crack the 10 million mark before the end of the year, or sooner. Rick let me have a sneak listen to one of Celine's new tracks, Carole King's (You make me feel like a) Natural Woman, which became a big hit for Aretha Franklin. Well, I've got to tell you, this cover is awesome. She is backed by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. By the way, David Foster produced. (EC: And she did it without the Cancon crutch . . . !)

Here comes Edgar . . . ! Unlike the Reichmans, who try to keep a low profile, fellow Canadian entrepreneur Edgar Bronfman Jr. is romancing the press, well, kinda. He obviously knows the territory and the product. The Globe And Mail's business writers, unlike those in the entertainment department, laid out everything nice and neat. Writers Ann Gibbon and Brian Milner cut through all the fluff and crap in their piece in Report On Business (June 1/95), to come up with a very informative item. There had been speculation that Michael Ovitz would be joining MCA. It's still speculation, but it looks a tad more conceivable now. Bronfman was quoted in the article as saying "The music business can and is growing and needs to grow even faster." Great stuff. These guys should cover the entertainment beat. (EC: They did . . . !)

Fruit of the Loom . . . ? Alan Jackson, no relation to Michael, is apparently promoting Fruit of the Loom underwear . . . and socks. He's off on a 100-city two-nation Country Comfort tour, which is part of the Fruit of the Loom Country Comfort Music Series. Sounds like a ball-busting tour to me. He's scheduled for Toronto's Molson Amphitheatre on June 2. (EC: Ball-busting . . . ?)

After 75 years, he's still THE Record Man

by Ron Rogers

"It started on College Street with this one little appliance store with a couple of listening booths. It expanded until it really took over the whole hardware business, took over the store next door, took over the apartment over the store, and it got big enough that we came to Yonge Street."

Talking to Sam Sniderman, it all sounds so simple. Open up a small sidelight within his family's Radio Sales And Service store, take in as many records from local, small-time distributors as you can, even make the occasional trip to Buffalo to bring back the latest American 78's.

Sam Sniderman was, and it can be an overwrought cliché, a pioneer. To use more business-tinged slang, he was a mover and shaker, before the Canadian music industry knew what was being moved or shaken. It's easy to look back in hindsight and say that opening up a record store chain was a natural, with the Canadian music industry ready to take off. But again, to churn out another hackneyed cliché, hindsight is 20/20. Even the most obvious ideas needed a launching pad, and it was Sam who had the nerve and the guts to actually throw his money and hat into the fray.

In the time since, he has become one of the most recognizable names and faces in the country, thanks in part to his decision to slap his own name on the very first store, on a dare from older brother Sid. His charitable works and endless promotion of this country and its music have earned him the Order of Canada, enshrinement on boards of directors too numerous to mention (including CARAS and the East Coast Music Association), and a permanent place in the fabric of Canadian culture, pardon the hyperbole.

And yet, listening to Sam even today, one gets the sense that he's still overwhelmed by the whole thing, that he still can't quite comprehend the fact that he started the record retail industry in Canada, and helped get the Canadian music industry itself off the ground.

"It started in 1960 with Yolles Furniture store, just south of Dundas, and they gave us a little piece of their store, in the basement. About six months after that, as we grew, they gave us space on the ground floor. Then in '61, we were forced to look for another location. We found this building that was right next door to A&A's, the main competitors. We paid $140,000 for it, which was unbelievable money back then.

"There hasn't been a year yet that hasn't seen an upswing in sales, even this year. May 31st will be our fiscal year end, and it'll be the biggest year we've ever had. I remember the most startling thing was the first Saturday on Yonge Street, when I made $1,000."

Of course, these days, the Sam's chain probably rakes in about $1,000 bucks every minute. The chain has grown from the first franchise outlet in the Golden Mile Plaza in Toronto, to the 130 stores located throughout the country. While Golden Mile Plaza was the first franchise, and the company ventured heavily into franchising in the '70s and early '80s, Sam says that his company had to pull back on franchising simply because of the costs involved.

"With the costs being as they are now, and the discounts being so slender and the competition being so great, it's tough to be anything other than a company store. The franchisees that we have now are fine because they're established and they don't have the mortgages and interest payments and all that. But when Jason took over ten years ago, he said, 'Dad, I want company stores', and started opening up nothing but company stores, and buying back the franchises as they owners retired."

While Sam is still acknowledged as the godfather of the company, it's Jason who really runs the show now. And while he has all the confidence in the world in his son, he does worry, as would any father handing off his baby.

"You always worry. It's like worrying about you baby. And the darndest thing is, there's about 130 stores, it isn't that I worry about the other 129, the only one I really worry about is Yonge Street. That's the one I started with. Of course, my brother Sid is there every day even now, and he's 88. And Lana, my niece, looks after the finances of the whole thing. And Bobby has now come back in with Jason, opening up those cafes, and they're proving to be very successful."

While Sam's has been the premier record chain in Canada for years, in the past decade, the competition has arisen in the forms of both HMV and the record clubs, Columbia House and BMG Music Service.

While there's certainly room at the top for two major record retailers, the record clubs pose an entirely new threat. As Sam points out, the clubs are gaining an unfair advantage, and the regular retailers are getting burned because of it.

"They aren't helpful at all, these record clubs. There was a big study that NARM did on the record clubs, and they're taking away quite a large percentage. I remember when the record clubs first started, they had us retailers together in meetings, and we were told that the clubs were only going to supply records in those places where they weren't being supplied, and that they'd be helpful to us in getting people interested in music. That was great to start with, but it's gone way beyond that.

"Everyone agrees, even those record companies that have clubs, that the clubs have not been very helpful. I'd like to see some legislation passed, that when they want to do these giveaways, they at least have to pay the taxes, the PST and GST, because we all have to pay it when we go shopping. There must be millions of dollars in taxes that aren't used because of these giveaways."

While there's no doubting that Sam and his chain are Canadian institutions, he also admits that he'd love to expand elsewhere in the world. He says he's been nagging Jason for years to expand, not so much in the US, but Europe.

"I believe the pipeline has come into here for some companies, and I believe that pipeline can be reversed. Jason and I went to London about five years ago to take a look at London, he sent me to Paris to look at the Virgin store in Paris. I even went to Berlin to look at the big store in Berlin. So I'm after Jason to open up hopefully in Paris to begin with, I'd love that. At my age, it'll give me the alibi for travelling."

It was in 1976, in an interview with RPM, that Sam noted that one of his larger aspirations was to open up his own record company. He noted then, "Once that's achieved, that pinnacle, then I'll retire. You can talk all you want, but until we have a Canadian-owned record company that can operate internationally at the same level as a CBS or an RCA, until that time, everything else will be just idle talk."

Twenty odd years later, Sam still dreams of opening up his own record company. And he still thinks it's possible to open up a record store, in any territory in the world, selling nothing but Canadian product.

"I've been after Jason now of putting together our own record company. I think it's way overdue.

"The other day, Jason said to me 'Dad, you talked about opening up that Canadian record store 10-20 years ago, and at that time it was really going out on a limb. We'd have no trouble now in opening up a store in London selling nothing but Canadian product and having it very successful.' I said, okay, do it. With Jason being in FACTOR, he has a lot of information that could be useful for that sort of venture."

Like Honest Ed Mirvish, Sam Sniderman is a Toronto original. Born and raised here, he has always called the city his home, and as he said, still looks upon the Yonge Street flagship store as 'his baby'. And as he says, Toronto the good has changed enormously in the 75 years he's live here.

"It's a much more cosmopolitan city now. When I was born and raised here, Toronto was a much different city at the time. I don't even think the streetcars ran on Sunday. A lot of changes have taken place, particularly the influx of immigrants. I think we now have the largest Chinese population outside the Orient, and the biggest Italian population outside of Italy. And I think the influx of immigrants has been very good for the city."

As everyone is aware by now, along with being a true Torontonian, Sam Sniderman is first and foremost a proud Canadian. He has long been at the forefront of promoting Canadian music and records, and has been a long-time supporter of Cancon regulations. But asked whether or not enough is being done to promote Canadian talent, he admits that he's never satisfied.

"I'm never satisfied, like everybody in the industry. I'd like to see a lot more done. Although we are third in line English-speaking countries, we're far behind #1 and #2, the US and England. We have a lot of opportunities throughout the world we haven't taken advantage of. I'm delighted to see it developing, but as Walt would tell you better than I, it started with nothing, and it's gone a long way, but there's a hell of a long way it can still go."

"The only advice I have to offer on Cancon is the advice that Pierre Juneau gave at the time. Juneau made the announcement of the content ruling, which really started the industry, had some crying in many ways. The media questioned Juneau about the 30% ruling, and they said, 'suppose it doesn't work'. He was very quiet, and he looked up and said, 'then we'll make it 50%'. I think that's about the only answer you can get."

As the industry moves closer to the year 2000, the methods and paths through which we receive our entertainment are ever changing. The dramatic influence of computers and digital technology on the entertainment field are still being explored. Which leads to an obvious question - with so many things already accessible via computers, is the time coming when retail outlets like Sam's will no longer be viable.

"If you can change human nature, you may be able to get away from not selling retail. But human nature has a need for shopping, it's almost a social thing. I don't think you're going to find any major changes in shopping patterns, unless you can change human

Jason Sniderman keeps the business in the family

Jason Sniderman never really wanted to be a businessman. Growing up surrounded by music, he naturally wanted to be a rock star. He developed his musical talents throughout his formative years, learning the piano, synthesizer, bass and guitar, including three years of classical training on the guitar.

Eventually, Jason formed the synth-rock band Blue Peter with several friends, a group that enjoyed some seminal success in the late '70s in the Toronto area, and toured extensively throughout the country. But when brother Bobby left the record business to pursue a restaurant venture (which became The Senator in downtown Toronto), Sam got on the phone to bring Jason back into the fold.

"My brother retired from the business and that precipitated me coming back into the business very rapidly. Sam said, 'Come back or I'm gonna sell the fucking place'. Those were his exact words, I was in Prince George, BC, playing a gig."

In the time since Jason took over the chain, the business has continued to expand greatly. The Sam's chain now consists of some 130 stores throughout the country, and Sam admits that Jason has played an instrumental role in the company's expansion.

When he did take over the reins several years back, Jason did receive a few words of advice from his famous father.

"No surprises', that's his big line. He says, 'Do whatever you want, and give me no surprises'. It's basically your standard passive aggressive approach. He's the king of passive aggressive. He's the queen of denial and the king of passive aggressiveness."

Of course, Jason is but one member of the family involved in the business. Brother Bob, who was Sam's right hand man before venturing into restaurants, has returned to the fold, lending the Senator name to a series of cafés built in to several recently opened stores. Cousin Lana helps keep the financial books together. And uncle Sid, 88 years young, still drops in to the flagship Yonge Street store every morning at eight, usually staying until closing time.

As for Sam, he still maintains his office in Roblan's Church Street headquarters. And as Jason notes, he has assumed a type of High Lama status within the company, tossing down the occasional tidbits of advice.

"He's here every day. He's kind of like Jabba the Hut. Going to him is like Mohammed going to the mountain. But sometimes, the mountain walks around in the basement looking for stray returns."

"It really and truly has been a democratic process, between my cousin Lana, my father, my uncle, and then all the people at Roblans who've been here forever like John McBride and John Filion. We've been making the decisions ourselves, without the benefit of his advice, for the last three or four years. But when we have a real pressing question, we go to him."

Growing up in the Sniderman household obviously wouldn't make for a normal childhood.

Jason admits, however, that while he and his father didn't have a normal father-son relationship, they emerged as better friends than most father and sons are.

"My father was 40 years old when I was born. There's ten years between myself and my brother Bob. So my father at that time in his career was busy building his business. There's no sour grapes, he just didn't have a lot of time to do Dad-type things. My father isn't a traditional Dad-type guy anyway, because he himself never had a dad, his dad was really my uncle. We never played baseball or hockey together or anything like that."

"But what my father did was take me to every industry function he went to. So we spent time together that way. That formed a very strong bond in the sense that we spent a lot of time together isolated from the rest of the family. Consequently, we've been able to travel together very easily."

"It's not a father-son kind of thing, it's more like friends. And I think that's what every father-son relationship strives to be."

Sam says he's already semi-retired at this point, acting more as an ambassador for the company more than anything else. But Jason, for one, hopes he never closes the office door for good.

"No way, he's got those fish in there. My uncle and my brother built him a fountain in his office at Yonge Street once, he had goldfish in there. I used to drop orange pop and stuff in there, to see if the fish would drink it."

"I don't want him to retire. He's too much fun to poke fun at."

Three quarters of a century add up to 75 years young. Three score and 15 also add up to 75 years young, total age of my very good friend, Sam

The Record Man, whom I have known closely for almost half a century, almost 50 years to be exact.

It was in 1945 and I was freshly back from over four years of overseas army service. I needed help to make a living. It was destiny that led me to drop in to Sniderman's Car

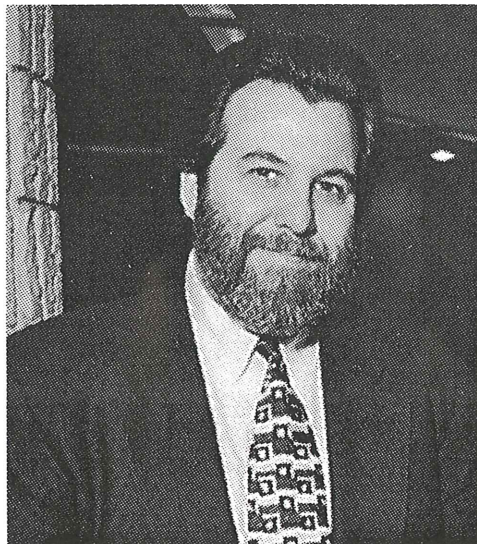

Radio and Music Store at 714 College Street. It was then, with the help of Sam The Record Man, that I fashioned the idea of producing a radio show at CHUM Radio with fabulous European records supplied by Sam The Record Man Sniderman.

Our friendship on College Street flowered and continued to flower even when Sam left College Street for Yonge Street and the music world. I remained on College Street in the food and multilingual broadcast world.

Sam . . . you helped so many of us when were in need. I thank you. Happy birthday. Mazel tov and shalom. I look foward, with pleasure to celebrating many more birthdays with you. I wish you 120 years of life and more. I wish myself the same so that our friendship can continue to flower non-stop.

I'm old enough to have shopped at the College Street store, and did! In fact, I ran into Sam and Janet last month, less than a block from the old store. Old habits die hard. Sam has always been a supporter of everything Canadian, including Attic, and has had a greater impact on us all than we will ever realize.

I'll never forget going out for dinner in Hong Kong back in the late seventies. The waiter brought a cauldron of soup, with what appeared to be dumplings floating on top. I'll never forget the look on Sam's face when he put one on his spoon, and was just about to put it in his mouth when he realized it wasn't a dumpling . . . it was a cow's eyeball.

I still have the pictures Sam. So many of us could go on and on about our Sammy experiences, but I'll close by wishing Sam another 75 great years on the floor on Yonge Street."

New Releases

STAIRWAYS TO HEAVEN -Rock/pop
Various Artists
Atlantic-82643-P

Okay, everybody... "There's a lady who's sure, all that glitters is gold, and she's buying... a stairway... to heaven. When she gets there she knows, if the stores are all closed, with a word she can get what... she came for. Ooooh Ooooh Ooooh, ooooh ooh ooh ooh, and she's buying... a stairway... to heaven. There's a sign..." All right, enough already. Everyone knows the rest of it anyway, because Stairway To Heaven, or The Stairway, as true Zeppelinheads call it, is undoubtedly the most famous rock song ever written. The song never was released as a single, yet it still tops the list every year whenever rock stations poll their listeners for their all-time favourite song. This collection actually has its origins in an Australian television series called The Money Or The Gun, and the star of that show, Andrew

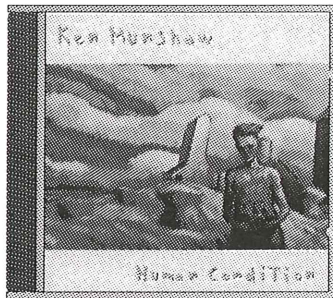

Denton, contributes some very humorous liner notes, informing us that everyone from Bruce Springsteen to Cher to Peter Gabriel attempted the song for this compilation, but just couldn't cut the mustard. Very funny. Actually, those contributing include such memorable names as The Rock Lobsters (guess what that version sounds like), Vegimite Reggae, Pardon Me Boys and Kate Ceberano and The Ministry Of Fun. Anything and everything goes here, and if you're expecting any version that sounds close to the original, forget it. Who knows, this collection actually could sell. And it makes me wonder.

KEN MUNSHAW
Human Condition
Duke Street-31095-J

-Pop

This Burlington, Ontario native is hoping to make a dent in the somewhat overcrowded AC market, and if MCA pulls the right strings (via Duke Street Records), he could make a few waves. Munshaw is a true singer/songwriter, penning all the titles on this record. He says that the album is essentially a collection of observations and conditions he's encountered throughout the course of his life, and he certainly has quite a bit to say. Unlike many pop/AC artists, he doesn't inundate the lyrical content of his songs with too many 'I love you's' or 'baby, baby's'. Instead, he presents a lyrical diversity and insightfulness that's borne of years of working the resort and club circuit. He also displays a vocal confidence that most first-timers don't have, again, thanks to a great deal of club gigs. If you're looking for comparisons, the most obvious is likely Bruce Hornsby, although there's a slight new country tinge here that could make for some crossover potential at country radio, a la Hornsby or Bonnie Raitt. Highlight tracks worth noting include Sun Comes Up, Souls, Danville Line and Let The Spirit Move You. Produced by J. Richard Huff, recorded at 1:2:1 Studios in Toronto, Baldwin Piano Studios in New York, and Cedar Tree in Kitchener.

KAROUSEL
Thunder Underground
Taillefer Productions-1227

-Country/Rock

This quartet from Sturgeon Falls, Ontario have created a package of solid entertainment that covers country, swing, blues and rock. Multi-instrumentalist Mario Taillefer is literally, the one-man band here showing his exceptional talent on bass, electric, acoustic and steel guitars, as well as keyboards, drums and mandolin. He gets an assist from Jacinthe Trudeau on fiddle. Karousel is a showband, so much of their live performances involve interacting with the audience through their humour. Here, they concentrate on music alone. The harmonies are excellent and the band's choice of song material fits these harmonies like a glove. Written by Claude Gendron, the title track, taken as the first single, commemorates the Westray Mine Disaster in Nova Scotia. Also key is Twin Blues, written by Mario Taillefer, where the band captures the spirit of country blues with this flat-out performance. One of the better tracks is Jerry Warren's penning of This Lovin' Feelin', a great summer ballad. And they do it again with another Warren original. Too Little Too Late (To Be Good), showing their natural ability for country swing. The album was produced by Mario Taillefer at Soundario Studio. The other members of the band are Gilles Duhaime, Bernie Pitre and André Taillefer. Available through Taillefer Productions in Sturgeon Falls, Ontario 705-753-5017 or fax 705-753-3822.

ROBERT SILVERMAN -Instrumental
The Parlour Grand
Marquis Classics-161

A native of Montreal, Silverman appeared in recital at the age of five, and made his debut with the Montreal Symphony Orchestra when he was 14. He is now regarded as the senior Canadian-born pianist concertizing nationally and internationally on a regular basis. Silverman has put together a very interesting repertoire for this album, which he recorded on a small grand piano dating from the 19th century. A salon-sized hall was apparently the setting for the recording which is squeaky clean, capturing the very essence of Silverman's keyboard virtuosity. These aren't the usual boring works from the masters, but they are indeed, 18 favorites from a bygone era, all of which are referred to as the "salon repertoire." Although all 18 tracks are key, there are those where Silverman has pleasantly indulged in more than a bit of creative freedom, stamping his own musical signature on these works. These include Lizt's Liebestraum, Rachmaninoff's Prelude, Dvorak's Humoresque and Paderewski's Menuet à l'antique. He also creates an exquisite aura around Rustle Of Spring, the work of American composer Edward MacDowell. He is also right on with the 7.31 recording of The Dying Poet, a work from another American, Louis Moreau Gottschalk. But don't overlook Jean Francois Eugene Gautier's Le Secret, a clever work, originally composed as a pizzicato étude for violin, which was immortalized in Sparky's Magic Piano, a popular children's recording of the early '40s. This attractively-packaged CD also contains brief, but very informative bits about the composer's, whose works he uses here. Marquis Classics are distributed in Canada by Denon.

THE AGE OF ELECTRIC -Pop/Alternative
The Age of Electric
God's Teeth Ethel Records-S9501

You pretty much would have had been living in never-never land for the past three weeks not to have heard about the two sets of brothers from Vancouver who comprise The Age of Electric. Released on their own label, God's Teeth Ethel, their self titled album has enjoyed a lot of success on video as much as on radio and has garnered the group Best West Coast Independent Artist of the Year at the Canadian Rock Awards. The gems in the set are Untitled and Ugly, both, not surprisingly, with a little help from a friend in a high place, in this case Bob Rock, who acted as executive producer on the two tracks. Following a pretty dependable recipe for noisy hard alternative music, The Age of Electric rely on not one, but two guitars for their particular brand of chord grind, some prominent vocals, strong harmonies and a liberal dose of profanity. It seems to work: 11,000 copies later and two tunes receiving heavy air play (on radio as much as on video), the band have definitely made their splash strong felt. A lot of media interest at the brink of their US debut should keep these guys in your line of vision for the next while.

ALBUM PICK

RAGGADEATH
Why Ask Why
Virgin-33366-F

-Reggae/rock/rap

Steve "The Onion" Kendall, the dj/percussionist of Virgin Canada's latest signees, Raggadeath, looks at the band this way: "It's not a manufactured thing. We've all got totally different tastes and ideas and somehow it all fuses really well. I just think we have something different." Couldn't have said it better myself. Since Shabba arrived on the scene several years ago, bringing his unique mixture of reggae, rap and rock, the sound took off in the clubs, and brought an entirely new audience to reggae. The sound here is pretty heavy, as evidence by the first single, One Life, which features rapid feature rapping pasted on top of some very heavy metal-esque guitar riffs. While that song is indicative of the type of sound Raggadeath is after, there are other cuts that delve more into a hip-hop type of sound, while others even have a suitably mainstream tinge, although CHR radio would probably have trouble with this one. Raggadeath, which consists of Kendall, vocalist Michie Mee, tech wiz Walter Sobczak, guitarist Steve Major and rapper Koze, is, as we said, signed to Virgin Canada, one of the first domestic signing by the labels in a long time. They're hoping that they'll break open, much like Shabba himself did. Don't look at it as rock with a hip-hop feel - more like rap/reggae with a rock and roll attitude.

BMG enjoys Major night at 1995 Big Country Awards

BMG once again confirmed its status as the pre-eminent provider of country music in this country, with their company and its artists winning seven awards at the 20th anniversary Big Country Awards, which were held Sunday, May 28 at the Westin Harbour Castle Conference Centre in Toronto.

Charlie Major confirmed his status as the biggest star in Canadian country today, winning Canadian country artist of the year for a second straight time. Major, who's enjoyed six #1 hits off his Arista album The Other Side, also garnered the top male artist prize.

The biggest winner on the night was Toronto's Prairie Oyster, who picked up awards for country album (Only One Moon), group or duo and country song (Such A Lonely One, written by Russell deCarle). Mercury artist Shania Twain grabbed the coveted outstanding new artist honours.

The Big Country Awards capped off a countrified weekend at the Westin Conference Centre, which also played host to the annual Variety Club Salute To Big Country on Friday, May 26. The luncheon, attracting a packed house of record industry VIP's, featured performances by Desert Dolphins, Bill Candy and Joan Kennedy.

The Big Country Awards, which are voted on by RPM subscribers, were also telecast coast-to-coast on CBC-TV on May 31.

nature, you may be able to get away from not selling retail. But human nature has a need for shopping, it's almost a social thing. I don't think you're going to find any major changes in shopping patterns, unless you can change human beings and human nature."

As the Roblans company continues to grow and grow every year, and as the company continues to enjoy better and better profits every year, he is constantly asked if he'd would ever move from their Church Street offices, and if he'll ever sell the company outright.

"We own these buildings, of course (Roblans' Church Street offices in Toronto), and they're worth more and more every year. So if we move, it'll be Jason and Lana's decision, not mine.

"I don't think we'll ever sell, not unless somebody comes along and offers a stupid figure. It would have to be unbelievable. If somebody wants to come along and give us a billion dollars, I don't we'll refuse."

With Jason and niece Lana essentially running the business, and now with his other son Bobby back in the fold via the Senator cafés in several Sam's outlets, Sam is no longer running the show as he did for so long. Which leads to the obvious final question - will he ever close his office door for the last time and truly retire?

"Somebody once told me that when you retire, you'd be busier than when you were working, and that's so true.
